BEDTIME STORY

Focused on the core principle that “healthy people have healthy cells,” Toni Goren founded Boynton Beach-based PureWave after she discovered the effectiveness of electromagnetic devices for her own health issues. Goren, along with a team of engineers, set out to design an energy system that supports stress management, energy coherence, and cellular function. Among their developments is the VEMI Biosynchronizer Bed, which delivers millions of gentle frequencies, sound, and infrared heat designed to reset the biophysiology of the body.

“The VEMI acts like a harmonics conductor syncing all the cells, tissues, and body parts to vibrate at the same time with the same intensity,” explains Maria Krajnak, PureWave’s business manager. “When this happens, an altered state of consciousness can occur—similar to the great sages, yogis, and modern-day shamans—where you can tap into your own heightened intuitive awareness for complete restoration, improved clarity, and better health.”

The VEMI aims to restore coherence to the body’s biofield, which is an electromagnetic field that all living things create, explains Krajnak. “Our fields are constantly interacting with other fields or devices that output beneficial or nonbeneficial frequencies known as electromagnetic fields. Our bio-wellness devices help to mitigate the effects of disruptive frequencies like smart meters, Wi-Fi, and cell phones. A lot of stress and dysfunction within the body stems from chaotic interference fields, but our ‘pure waves’ help to restore clear communication and signaling for restored optimal health.”

Ready to try it yourself? While the bed retails for $50,000, you can experience its effects at select wellness centers and spas including at the Carillon Miami Wellness Resort. (purewavelife.com) —L.G.S.
